About the Udmurt state university
About the Institute of Pedagogics, Psychology and Social Technologies
Photo Gallery

The Department of Theory and Methods of Technological and Vocational Training

The Department of Theory and Methods of Technological and Vocational Training (DTMTVT) is one of the oldest departments of the Udmurt State University with a history of more than 25 years. The founder of the Department was the first rector of the Udmurt State University, the honorary freeman of the city of Izhevsk, Boris Nikolayevich Shul'ga (1926 - 2002). The instructors of the Department are experienced at working at secondary schools and colleges. Highly professional staff of the Department has substantial experiences and scientific and creative potential. There work two professors and five associate professors at the Department. Seven instructors has PhD (or candidate of science) degrees and one is a Doctor of Science. The head of the Department is associate professor Alexey Prichinin. The instructors of the department have published more than 500 scientific and methodological works and have obtained 68 certificates of authorship and patents. There are some winners and laureates of various local, regional and all-Russian competitions such as "Teacher of the Year", "The Best Russian Scientific Book", "The best Methodological Publication of the UDSU". During the last seven years four candidate theses and one doctoral dissertation have been successfully defended.

